Early statutes primarily focused on specific issues, such as racial segregation laws in the United States or gender-based restrictions, with limited scope and enforcement mechanisms. Discrimination was often tolerated or ignored, reflecting societal prejudices.

Post-War Era and International Influence

The aftermath of World War II and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948) marked a turning point. International bodies, including the United Nations, promoted anti-discrimination principles, leading to the adoption of treaties like the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (ICERD, 1965). These instruments influenced national laws, emphasizing equality as a fundamental human right.

Emergence of Comprehensive Legislation

In the UK, the 1970s saw the enactment of pivotal statutes such as the Equality Act 1970, which laid the groundwork for broader anti-discrimination measures. The evolution culminated in the Equality Act 2010, a comprehensive piece of legislation consolidating previous laws and extending protections across multiple protected characteristics.
